guided by a host of variables including the investors perception of market return, alternative avenues of investment, preferred instruments of investments, international interest rates etc. As per the date/ information made available by the Reserve Bank of India, while investment in Indian companies by NRIs in the last three years has gone down, the Bank deposits, in the corresponding period, have been consistently on the increase. There had been an overwhelming response to the Resurgent India Bonds recently floated by the State Bank of India and an amount of more than US $ 4.16 Billion had been mobilised. Considering the scenerio in totality, the pattern of NRI investment is perceived to be undergoing normal corrections.

(c) Government, on an ongoing basis, have taken several measures to encourage NRI investment in the Indian companies. Some of the recent initiatives include enhancement of the portfolio investment ceiling for NRIs, simplification of approval mechanism for investments through capital market, liberalisation of norms of NRI investment in the health services etc.
